Program Objectives

St. Cloud State University is offering the opportunity to study in Macerata, Italy at the University of Macerata in May 2015. Established in 1290, the University of Macerata (UNIMC) is the second-oldest university in Italy, and will be the home base during the two-week program. In addition to taking classes at UNIMC, students will be involved in a 20-hour international internship, working side-by-side with Italian academics. Students will also tour other Italian cities and universities, as well as regional landmarks and businesses. This education abroad course will present you with an unforgettable cultural and academic experience!

Course Title & Learning Objectives

"International Higher Education: Discovering Universities in the European Context"

Each participant in this education abroad course will...

- learn about the history of Italy, including the history of higher education;
- develop an awareness and understanding of current and critical issues impacting higher education administrators and institutions in Italy;
- discuss and analyze how the current and critical issues in Italy compare and contrast to issues impacting higher education administrators and institutions in the U.S.;
- demonstrate and perfect his/her communication and group facilitation skills;
- expand skills in articulating and defending his/her stand on a variety of comparative higher education issues; and
- develop an appreciation for international higher education through on site internship opportunities.
